Margaret Stovel Kinrade
Buried Yesterday
Afternoon

WAS 89 YEARS OF AGE

Margaret Stovel was born on Feb. 27, 1833, in Ramsey, on the Isle of Man, and came to this country when 32 years of age. On March 20, 1866, she was married to Daniel Kinrade of Antioch, who at that time owned the farm now belonging to Richard Kaye. To this union was born two children, Mrs. Edith Cornish (now deceased) and Fred Kinrade of this place. In July, 1874, her husband passed away and in 1880 she moved to Solon Mills to make her home with her daughter. After the daughter's demise in 1911 she returned to Antioch to live with her son's family, at whose home she passed quietly away at about 11 o'clock last Sunday evening at the age of 89 years. Beside her son and daughter-in-law she leaves to mourn her loss four grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and a number of other relatives. The funeral was held from the home of Fred Kinrade at 2 o'clock Wednesday and the burial in the Hillside cemetery, where "Grandma" Kinrade, as she was tenderly called by all who knew her sterling qualities and ever cheerful disposition, was laid to rest by the side of her deceased husband.

NEWHOUSE SLATED AS ADMINISTRATOR

Reports are that Peter Newhouse, editor of the Grayslake Times, is slated for the position of public administrator of Lake County, vice W. J. Smith, who, through appointment to the commerce board, will resign the administrator job.

Mr. Newhouse has lived in the county many years, was a supporter of Governor Small in the primary and at the election and therefore his expected appointment is a logical one.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS AT ANTIOCH POSTOFFICE

There are unclaimed letters at the Antioch postoffice for Mrs. H. Donna-van, Emil Dildero, Mrs. William Den-nie, Mrs. Eva Egan, Mrs. E. C. Fling, Mrs. Charles Gerity, Mrs. A. E. Gil-son, Hugo Cottage, George Howard, Mrs. Ernest G. Jacob, Loyal Berean Class (Church of Christ), Harold Pfau, Mrs. Earl Purdy, Mrs. A. Tol-strup, Miss Jennie Sima.

POLONIA CLUB WILL PLAY ANTIOCH HERE SUNDAY

The Polonia club of Waukegan will be the opponents of the local club here Sunday. The Polonia's are one of the fastest teams from the North Shore and as this is expected to be the closing game of the season for Antioch the home boys are anxious to gain a victory.

SPEAKS AT WADSWORTH

C. V. Gregory is scheduled as the headline speaker at the annual picnic of the Pioneer Agricultural Association at Wadsworth, Lake county, next Saturday.

In addition to the several hundred members of the association, scores of other dairymen from other parts of the county are expected to join in the days festivities.

OIL CANS AS ORNAMENTS

The oil containers with which Orchard street was oiled six weeks ago still maintain their position as ornaments along the roadside. Evidently the Standard Oil doesn't have to conserve its property.

P. T. A. DANCE

The Parent-Teachers association of Fox Lake will hold a benefit dance at Willis Inn Friday night.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, August 28, 1902

Mrs. George R. Olcott was in Chicago Monday.

Chase Webb was transacting business in Chicago Monday.

W. R. Williams transacted business in Chicago Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Olcott and daughter, Shirley, left Tuesday for a ten days visit north.

Fred Tarbell and wife, of Rogers Park were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pierce over Sunday.

Miss Lella Williams is spending a week in Elgin visiting relatives and taking in the annual "Elk's carnival."

Henry Herman and H. Bock took in the races at Beloit, Wis., the latter part of last week and report a good time and good races.

T. M. Johnson, wife and daughter, of Meringo, after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Somerville, at this place, returned to their home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thain of Millburn were Antioch callers Friday.

Walter Chinn of Kenosha was an over Sunday visitor at the home of his mother.

"TWINS" BORN AT J. VAN PATTEN FARM

While picking apples at the J. Van Patten farm, Miss E. Colegrove found twin apples. The apples are grown on one stem, each having a core of its own. One apple is a little larger than the other and both are nice and bright red.

Miss Colegrove brought the apple to The News office to be put on display, after which the editor will no doubt devour it.

FIND 1c AND COST FOR AUTO VIOLATION

A fine of 1 cent and cost was levied upon a Rockford, Ill., youth for leaving his machine running on Lake street while he stepped in a store to do some shopping. The arrest was made at 8 o'clock Saturday evening by Officer Stanley Thompson, and he was arraigned before Justice James Tuesday morning.

SCHLECHT'S SHORTAGES ARE NEARLY $30,000

Seven new warrants charging embezzlement and the conversion of bank funds were served on William G. Schlecht, defaulting cashier of the Silver Lake State bank, when he appeared in court at Kenosha last week for his preliminary hearing on four similar warrants sworn out several weeks ago. The shortages have jumped from $9,000 to $29,950. Schlecht's relatives are attempting to raise funds to cover the shortages. The new warrants brought a two weeks postponement of the hearing to give the defaulting banker an opportunity to prepare his defense.

NEW BUS LINE IN KENOSHA COUNTY IS IN OPERATION

The Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad has installed a bus line between Kenosha and Lake Geneva. The new busses will make the trip in about two hours. For the present a long detour is necessary by way of Silver Lake and Wilmot, but when the highway is finished by way of Slade's Corners and New Munster the trip will be made in an hour and a half.

Fare will be charged at the rate of three cents a mile. Eight trips each way a day are now being made between Lake Geneva and Kenosha.

MARKETING COMPANY DRIVE CLAIMED BIG SUCCESS

The big drive of the Marketing Company for the quota of members desired for Sept 1 is said by those in authority to be a big success. The company had 3400 signers last Saturday and with the new plan of each signer to get a signer it is thought the returns will show much greater results than anticipated.

The workers in charge of the Antioch drive claim an 80 percent membership by Saturday and those interested in the Marketing company in this section are highly elated over the results so far.

W. J. Smith Given Big State Job

Gov. Len Small has named William J. Smith, editor of the Waukegan Sun, as a member of the Illinois commerce commission. He gets the seventh place which has been vacant ever since the name of the body was changed and its membership increased by the last legislature more than a year ago.

The appointment of Mr. Smith created considerable discussion in Waukegan. The Waukegan Daily News, which bitterly criticized the conduct of its contemporary, the Sun, during the Small trial, had this to say concerning the appointment:

"Gov. Len Small was shaking the political plum tree in Springfield today and reports from the state capital indicate 'Bill' Smith, editor of the Sun, was there with a basket.

"The dope is that 'Bill' is after the seventh job on the Illinois commerce commission and that he is slated for appointment is a matter of hours. It will be remembered that 'Bill' rode along with the governor when the latter was on trial in Waukegan charged with pocketing a million of state funds. Friendship in such emergencies naturally comes costly. Reports of Governor Small's move to repay his trial debts exploded in Waukegan like a 22 centimeter shell.

"Bill," as a member of the state commerce commission, is almost beyond the imagination of this little town, where every man knows his neighbor. "The job pays $7,000 in authorized salary. Consequently it appears like 'Bill' has plucked a juicy fruit, a worth while compensation for 'going through with the governor.'"

Kauhaupt-Thompson Wedding Tuesday Is Beautiful Affair

A very beautiful wedding ceremony was solemnized Tuesday evening when Viola Marguerite Kauhaupt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kauhaupt of Antioch, was united in marriage to Ray Thompson of Oak Park.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, the Rev. Mumford of Antioch officiating.

The bride, beautifully dressed in pearl Canton crepe, carrying a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas, was attended by Miss Marie Johonneth, and the groom by Fred Yost of Champaign, Ill.

The ceremony was held at 6 p. m., after which dinner was served. Covers were laid for twenty-five friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left shortly after dinner for a three-weeks' trip, after which they will make their home in Oak Park.

Mr. Thompson is employed in the bond department of Stone & Webster in Chicago.

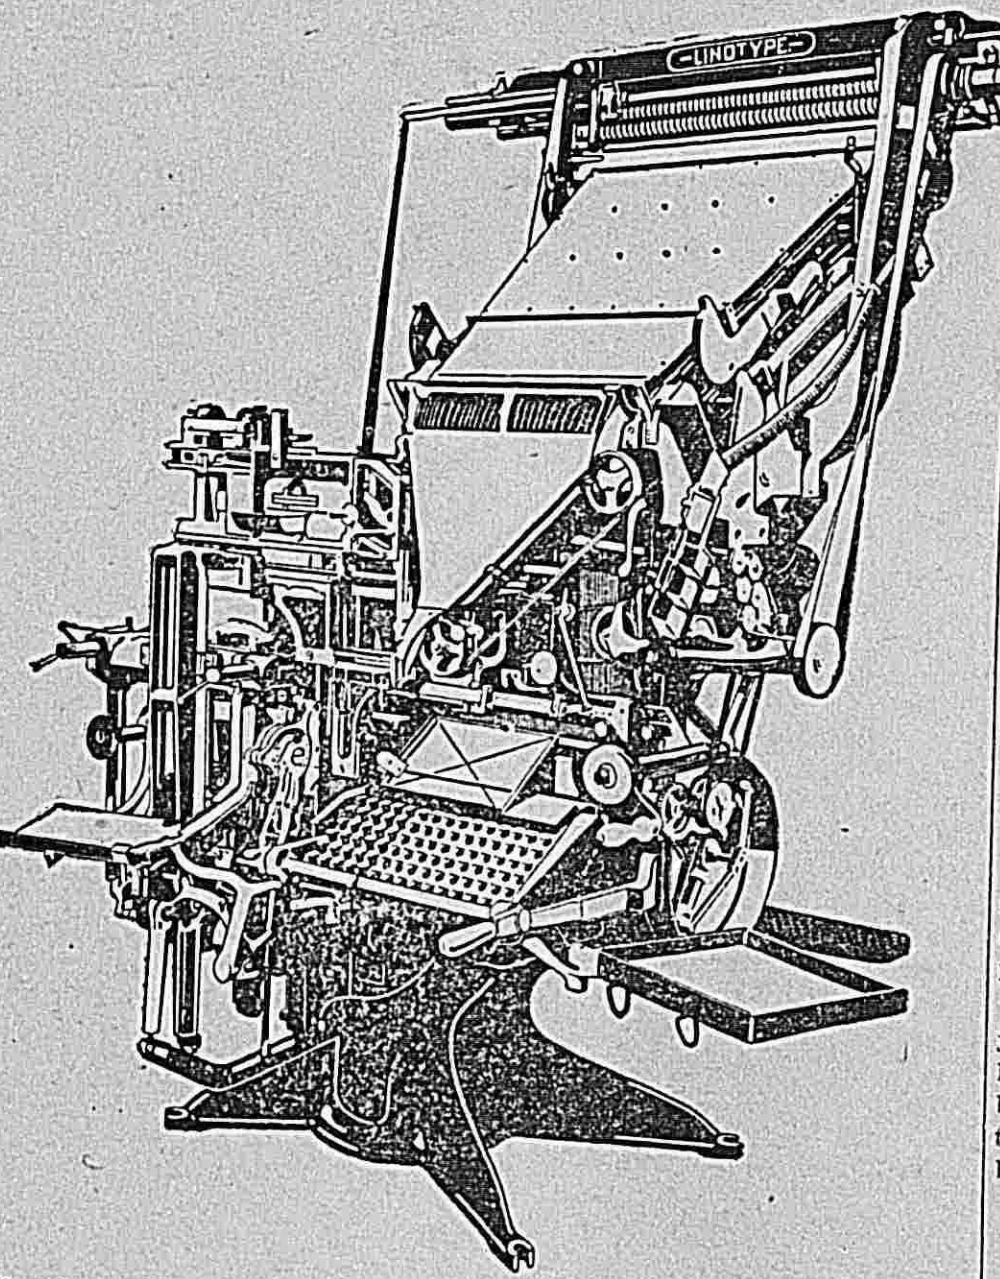

AUTO SHOW ROOM IN ANTIOCH IS SUCCESS

Morrell and Watson report great success since the opening of their automobile display room, next to King's Drug store.

Many visitors have called and inspected the beautiful display of cars, and several sales have already been made.

This is the first real automobile show room opened in Antioch and is indeed a credit to the town, and the proprietors feel highly elated over their success of their venture.

Antioch Press Install New Linotype

The Antioch Press has installed a new Linotype. This mechanical marvel qualifies us to serve efficiently the large number of persons who look to our publication for enlightenment and entertainment, and who patronize our job-printing department.

The rapidly increasing circulation of The Antioch News, together with our desire to place at the command of our advertisers and others the highest grade of typography, induced us to secure a fine composing machine for the quick and accurate and pleasing presentation of the news of the county, and the production of superior job work.

Our new Linotype enables us to set by machine many forms of composition that previously necessitated tedious work by hand. Our plant is now capable of turning out composition consisting of correct type faces in many different sizes, and the change from one size to another is made very quickly. At a high rate of speed the versatile operator produces line after line of the sort of composition desired.

This installation is a testimonial to the prosperity of Antioch and vicinity, and that the good people of the community are duly appreciative of our efforts to serve them in all departments of the printing business is manifested by the many compliments received from individual patrons since the arrival of our new machine.

The accompanying illustration will give our readers some idea of the marvelous mechanism of the Linotype, a composing machine on which are assembled matrices (or little brass molds) and lines of type cast—lines such as you are now reading.

Besides enabling the operator to set various faces and sizes of type, our new machine makes it possible for him to produce the rules and dashes and borders which are used in various advertisements in each issue of our publication. When employed in the composing of advertisements, newspaper headings, booklets, catalogues, and various other kinds of printed matter, our new machine enables one operator to set in the same time more type than ordinarily could be produced by five or six men or women doing the work by hand—and the composition is incomparably better.

Chautauqua Presents Fine Program Here

The Mutual Chautauqua closed its five-day engagement here Monday night. The program this year was very good, probably the best ever presented in Antioch. Plans for next year have been made. The new contract calls for 200 signers, all of which agree to buy a season ticket at $5.00 each. This will do away with the old plan of having all the burden fall on the shoulders of a score or more generous signers. The thirty signers this year will have to make up a deficit amounting to $16.25 each. The single admissions sold this year amounted to $175.00, while the season ticket sales were $437.50.

During the performance Monday night several prominent citizens gave impressive talks on why Antioch should have the Chautauquas. Rev. S. E. Pollock, formerly of Antioch, and one of last year's signers, received a great ovation when he appeared to give a talk. The former Methodist minister seems to hold the friendship of everyone in Antioch, and many still regret his leaving the local church.

CARD OF THANKS

The supporters of the Chautauqua this year wish to thank the Antioch Baseball association for the cancellation of the game on Sunday, the Antioch News for its liberal donation of space and Messrs Ferris, Messing, McGee, Lowry, Buschman and Miss Belle Hughes and Mrs. Watson for the good work in selling of tickets.

UNSIGHTLY POLES MAY ADORN NEW STREET

After an all summer fight on the part of the street and alley committee of the Board of Trustees to get the public Service and the Telephone Companies to consent to remove the poles from Main street at an expense to them of $8000 and fighting their way, with the help of the Commercial Association, through the list of objectors to the easements for the poles, it is suddenly found when the signing of the final papers are to be secured that three of the property owners who have given their consent to the project have suddenly hunched up their backs and refused to sign.

It is not conceivable, after all the work done in securing the removal of the poles that these three property owners should at this late date turn the proposition down and cause the loss of an $8000 improvement to the village, especially as one of the objectors has just completed an improvement to the village that has been commended by all. The action on the part of another member of the triumvirate in refusing to permit the improvement is not deemed of good judgement as the time is not far distant when his particular line of business will need all the support possible to maintain it.

This stand taken by the three objectors is probably causing the village to receive one of its hardest blows in its attempt of progress, and to think that all of these men are business men of old standing.

The Multitude of Stars.

Astronomers have counted the stars in typical districts and from these partial counts here and there we get some idea of the total number of stars and there are estimated to be between two and three thousand million stars.—J. A. Thomson in "The Outline of Science."

Curious Indian Custom.

Hudson bay Indians, when one of their number dies, place the body in a box with gun, ax, flint and snow shoes, which is left on a hill-top for ten days, when, the belief is, the dead one has reached the happy hunting grounds.

SILVER LAKE DEFEATS WILMOT

Silver Lake's new battery, Wedekind and Vendenburg, performed in fine style Sunday afternoon at the former's park at Silver Lake, defeating the Wilmot team 4-1. Silver Lake got two runs in the 2nd inning and the last two in the 6th. Edgar allowed 9 hits and Wedekind 8.

Silver Lake 2 0 0 0 2 0 0 4

The next game of the series will be played Sept. 3. McHenry will probably play at Wilmot next Sunday.

HIGH SCHOOL OPENS TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 5

Several New Subjects to Be Offered for the Coming Year

TWO NEW TEACHERS

The Antioch Township High School will open Tuesday, Sept. 5. The preliminary registration day will be Friday, Sept. 1. It is very important for each one to appear on Friday to decide on his program. An attempt will be made to arrange the program of studies so that there will be no conflicts for those registering Friday.

The following subjects will be offered. Those preceded by R are required. Only four subjects may be taken unless permission is secured from the Principal:

Freshmen—R English I, R Algebra, R General Science, Latin I, Agriculture, Cooking.

Juniors—R English III, Advanced Algebra, European History, Cicerone, Farm Management, Home Management, Physics, Shorthand, Typewriting, Mechanical Drawing.

Seniors—R English IV, R American History, Physics, Virgil Economics, Shorthand, Typewriting, Teachers Training, Home management.

There will also be classes in the following:

Physical Training, Glee Club, Orchestra, Bookbinding, Public Speaking, Debate and Elocution.

In general those who intend to go to college should have at least two years of Latin, two years of History and two of science. If Engineering courses are to be taken in college the student must have advanced algebra and solid geometry. These subjects are in addition to the English and mathematics above marked with the R.

If the above suggestions are followed, the graduate of Antioch Township High School may enter any college or university in the state of Illinois without examination, because of the recognition given this school by the state superintendent and by the University of Illinois. Our graduates are allowed the same privilege at nearly all schools of the middle west. This high school had been classed as a "probationary recognized" high school until last spring, when upon inspection by Mr. Hanna, state supervisor of high schools, the local school was given full recognition because of the equipment, course of study and class of instruction maintained.

As is generally known, this school is operating under the Smith-Hughes law, which provides that schools which comply with certain standards shall have one half the salaries of teachers of vocational subjects reimbursed by the state. The secretary of the local high school has just received a check for $2275 from the state, the school having satisfied the requirements.

The reimbursement next year will probably amount to more than $3000, since more of such work will be offered.

The following teachers have been employed for this year: L. O. Bright, principal, mathematics; D. M. Chalcraft, agriculture; L. R. Watson, manual training and athletics; Alice Smith, Latin and history; Marjorie Brand, English and design; Deedie Tiffany, home economics; Mellie Clevenger, science; Esther Olson, commercial and public speaking.

One of the new faculty members is Mr. Watson of Normal, Ill., who will be in charge of manual training and athletics. He will take charge of the seventh and eighth grade boys of the Antioch grade school when they are sent to the shop for instruction in manual training. This will probably be from 8:30 to 10:00 in the mornings. The other person new to the faculty is Miss Olson of St. Paul, Minn., who will have charge of the commercial work. She will assist with the work in English and public speaking. All of the other teachers were with us last year.

St. Ignatius' Church News

Regular Services
Holy Communion 8:00 A. M.
(Except 3d Sunday)
Church School 8:45 A. M.
Holy Eucharist 10:00 A. M.
(3d Sunday of month)

Last Sunday was the Tenth Sunday after Trinity. In Antioch there was no Early Eucharist, but the Church school was conducted at the regular time. As Mr. Brock had to be in Libertyville the Church school was led by Mrs. Osmond. The main service of the day was the Eucharist at 10:00 and there was a very good attendance at this service. Father Batty arrived about 10 minutes before the beginning of the service, as he had a service in Libertyville at 7:00 and another in Grayslake at 8:30. In all he celebrated three Eucharists that day. The late service in Antioch was a service of Thanksgiving for the very successful bazaar which was held last week and for which we are all duly thankful. The members of the Ladies' Guild, who made the bazaar such a success, were especially requested to be present and receive Holy Communion at this time.

The success of the bazaar was due to the untiring efforts of the members of the Ladies' Guild, and to the unbounded generosity of the merchants of the town, to say nothing of the many donations of various kinds, given by the members and friends of the Ladies' Guild. The Ladies' Guild wishes to take this means of thanking all those who contributed to the success of the bazaar. Taken all in all, it was undoubtedly the finest bazaar ever held. Most of all, however, our success was due to the ever-guiding providence of Almighty God. Gloria in Excelsis!

A letter has been received from the Rev. Edward S. White, the founder of St. Ignatius' Church. This mission has been in existence for almost seven years and it was founded by Father White, while he was priest-in-charge of St. Lawrence's church, Libertyville. He tells us that he will be able to visit this church on the second Sunday in September, which is Sept. 10th. We will be most pleased to have him with us again to see the progress we have made since he left his work in Libertyville. He is at present Rector of the Church of the Holy Communion, St. Louis, Mo., and is doing splendid work in that field. We are planning to have a great service the day that he is in Antioch; besides the customary Eucharist the Sacrament of Holy Baptism will be administered, and there will be special music by Mr. Fred Fuller. Mr. Fuller has been unable to play for us all summer as he has been playing at the Church of the Atonement in Chicago, but by that time he will be through there. We hope to make a big day of this occasion.

Next Sunday is the Eleventh Sunday after Trinity, and the services will be as usual: Holy Communion at 8:00, Church School at 8:45, and Morning Prayer and Sermon at 10:00. At the late service there will be a solo by Mrs. William Kreicher of Lake Catherine, and Miss Flora Churchill will play the organ both at this service and at the Sunday School service.

We are planning to have the Church School and Ladies' Guild picnic next Tuesday, and we hope to have a good attendance at it. The date will be August 29th.

The same week on Thursday the choir boys will take a trip to Michigan City, and there will probably be a card party the same day. Definite announcement of these events will be made next week.

BOOM IN HIGHWAY BUILDING DUE MAINLY TO FEDERAL AID

Federal aid has been probably the most important factor in the big boom in highway building of recent years, and there are now many long stretches of trunkline highways serving rich agricultural and industrial sections of the country which are almost entirely federal-aid construction.

The United States Department of Agriculture, which administers the federal-aid fund, points out that a traveler going from Richmond, Ind., to St. Louis across Indiana and the southern part of Illinois, thence to Chicago by way of Springfield and Peoria, a distance of approximately 679 miles, would travel 505 miles, or 75 percent of the way, on federal-aid highways, practically all of which should be in service by the end of the present season.

SUNDAY SERVICES:
Sunday School 9:45
Morning Service 11:00
Epworth League 7:00
Evening Service 7:45

Several more new scholars in Sunday school last Sunday besides a number of visitors. It should be so every Sunday until there is not a man, woman or child in all the community who is not a member of some Sunday School. The Sunday School of today is equipped to give real membership to every person in the community. Cradle Roll for all too young to be in Sunday School classes, home department for all too old, ill, or otherwise unable to attend the sessions of the Sunday School. And the present day Sunday School is such that increasingly large numbers are coming to see that they can and should be in Sunday School, and are delighted to have a place in it. A number of millions of people, especially men, who a few years ago never thought of going to Sunday School, are now regular and enthusiastic attendants. They are rapidly coming to see that every man, woman and child in America should be a member of Sunday School.

It was a real treat to hear Miss Neva L. Boyd at the Epworth League Sunday evening. She gave some excellent suggestions for having a really good time—good clean fun and recreation. Our league is already highly favored in this respect. Few, if any, groups of young people have better times than our Epworth League group.

Last Sunday morning the theme was "The More Abundant Life." The text was the words of Jesus, "I come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Every person has in his soul great untapped powers, uncharted territories, unsuspected powers, undeveloped resources, awaiting the touch of the Spirit of God. We do not know ourselves. We do not see our own responsibilities. Scarce one-tenth of our life is on or above the surface, where we become aware of it. Like the great icebergs in the ocean nearly all of life is in the depths. Our tragedy is that we do not more penetrate into the depths of our own lives.

The Indians on this continent waded over field fertile to produce untold billions of grains and fruits. They roamed over fabulous wealth of gold and silver and iron and coal and copper and lead and zinc and tin and thought not of the billions of horsepower of water in the great and smaller streams that could make enough electricity to furnish light and power to millions of people. For centuries all these mighty resources lay dormant, waiting the touch of the human spirit. Now, under that touch and control, they have been developed into so much of power and wealth as the world never dreamed. Just so, there are unguessed vastnesses of resources and powers in our lives, awaiting the touch of the Spirit of God. And when we really open the great deep of our own hearts and lives to Him, then it is that the Great Spirit touches into life, awakens to consciousness, organizes and develops those mighty powers within us we had not known before, and we suddenly find life immeasurably large and strong and rich and sweet and beautiful and full of a great, deep joy we could not before believe possible to us. This is "The More Abundant Life." We open the depths of our lives to Him for this new largeness of life by intensely earnest prayer.

VILLAGES HAVE FEW IDLERS

Cities, on the Contrary, Are the Centers of Innumerable Useless Activities.

When the National Economic Research bureau completed its investigation of salaries and incomes in the United States, it found that 88 out of every 100 men in this country have an income of less than $2,000 a year. Those who earn $10,000 a year are so rare as to be almost supermen—about one-tenth as I remember the figures, of 1 percent, writes Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business.

However, $2,000 a year isn't so bad if one doesn't live in a large city where he is compelled to pay a big rent for the luxury of living near many other people. In a small place $2,000 a year may bring every reasonable comfort. But how many who earn $10,000 in a great city could earn even $2,000 in a village? Somehow, it appears that one must come nearer to delivering value in a small place than in a big one. Cities are centers of many useless activities. Think of all the liveried apartment-house doormen, eyebrow pluckers and washroom brush boys in cities, to say nothing of high-salaried publicity agents, assistant vice presidents and such. What chance would any of these have in a sensible little village or on a farm, where everybody engages in actual definite toil?

THE CLEVER PRINTER

Frank A. Munsey at a recent banquet in New York overflowed with delightful youthful memories.

"I not only wrote my first magazine myself," he said, "but I did nearly all the printing of it myself as well. These printers! The way they could decipher the most undecipherable handwriting! It was marvelous. The typewriter, you know, hadn't come yet."

"One day Henry Ward Beecher dashed into our printing office and laid a dusty packet of manuscript before the foreman."

"I must have a clean proof of this," he said, "by tomorrow."

"We're very busy," said the foreman. "Can't you give us till Monday or Tuesday, Mr. Beecher?"

"No," said Mr. Beecher, "I can't. You see, this is a sermon. It's a special sermon, and I must preach it tomorrow morning. But I wrote it eight or nine years ago, and now I can't make out a word it says."

STONE SHIPS

About twenty years ago an Italian engineer made a boat of artificial stone, or cement, which excited much interest. It was an excellent boat and is yet in use. The framework of light iron rods was covered with a metallic trelis and then coated with cement were applied inside and out to form the hull. It proved surprisingly resistant to shocks. Since then the same engineer has constructed many more "stone" boats of various forms, and among them a large about 54 feet long and between 17 and 18 feet broad, which for some years has been employed for carrying coal in the harbor of Genoa. He also makes pontoons of the same material, which have been used to replace wooden pontoons of the Po. The material lasts better, even than iron and is not attacked by sea water.—Washington Star.

Notice for Bids

To contractors and builders. Lake Villa school board will receive bids, August 26, at 7 p. m., for the following work:

1. Installing of toilets.
2. Installing of steel beams for celling support.
3. Erection of horse shed.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Plans and specifications to be seen at H. H. Meier, Pres., and C. B. Hamlin, clerk, Lake Villa, Ill.

TRADE MARK FOR EGGS

A small trade-mark sticker is now put on all eggs sold by members of the North Haledon Leghorn Club in Passaic county, N. J. This organization was formed as a result of a meeting of poultrymen of the community with the agricultural extension agent to discuss the development of the poultry industry in that section. Each member pays 2 cents per bird owned, 8,000 birds being pledged at the first meeting of the club. All members use the trade-mark and guarantee eggs sold under it.

EVINRUDE

DETACHABLE MOTORS FOR WATERCRAFT

Surprisingly simple—anyone can operate an Evinrude. Just a turn of the flywheel and you're off! No back-breaking oar work to spoil the day's pleasure—an Evinrude turns any small boat into a power boat. You'll want this dependable motor for picnics, bathing and outing parties, fishing and hunting trips—and it really costs you only $10 a year. Ask us why.

YOUNG CARIBOU BULLS MAY IMPROVE REINDEER HERDS

The possibility of improving the grade and weight of the reindeer in Alaska herds by crossing them with caribou is being considered by the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture. A reconnaissance has been made in Mount McKinley National Park to determine the best locality for capturing later in the season a supply of young caribou bulls to be used in the breeding experiments.

The average dressed weight of several thousand reindeer carcasses shipped from Alaska was about 150 pounds each. In certain parts of Alaska, including Mount McKinley National Park, there is a form of native caribou the bulls of which are reported to attain maximum dressed weights approximating 400 pounds, and it is claimed that some are even heavier. Relationship is very close between our native caribou and the Alaskan reindeer, which are descended from stock imported from Siberia. It is believed, therefore that crossing the two will result in greatly improving the grade of the reindeer, perhaps doubling their weight.

GOOD AND BAD TASTE SHOWN IN CLUB COSTUME EXHIBIT

A spring fashion show of unique character reported to the United States Department of Agriculture was arranged in Gooding county, Ia., by extension workers. This was not a style show for the purpose of showing the latest fashionable creations, but a contrast exhibit to point out good and bad taste in the selection of girls' costumes.

Models selected from each of the 10 sewing clubs created a sufficient interest to bring many of the other members to the "show." They came from 3 to 20 miles. The show was staged as a part of the regular afternoon program of the local motion picture theater, the use of which was donated for the occasion. Five girls demonstrated the "poor taste" costumes, and five the good. The extension workers called attention to the fine points in each type of costume.

The house fly was barred from 65,000 additional farm homes in 1921 by screening installed as a result of demonstrations given by extension workers, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Stomach Trouble Had Him Nearly Fast Going, Declares Mower

"Tanlac has helped me to gain ten pounds," said J. E. Mower, 187 Park St., Akron, O., well-known railroad man. "My stomach was in such bad shape that for several days at a time I could hardly retain any food. I had no appetite and often the very sight of food made me sick. I was intensely nervous, too, could not rest at night, felt tired and worn out all the time, and lost weight and strength until I was almost a wreck."

"Tanlac has made me feel like a different man. My appetite is enormous and I haven't a sign of indigestion left. I never felt stronger. Tanlac certainly does the work."

FLOCK TO CANADA

Immigrants of High Order Settling on Western Plains

Removal of Restrictions Necessary During the War Has Shown World's Faith in Dominion's Future

For a period during the late war, and for a while after its close, there was put into operation by the Canadian government legislation restricting certain classes and people of the countries which were not lined up with the allied nations from being admitted to Canada. This was quite necessary, and the reasons for it will be so apparent that they need not be given. However, the time came, in the early summer of this year, when it was deemed possible to remove some of these restrictions. It was found that there were many who came under their ruling that were of a class that Canada needed and who needed Canada. The restrictions, doubtless, were drastic, but were necessary. The news of their removal, broadcast, has met with such a response as to give ample evidence that they had not killed interest in Canada, and that faith in the Dominion as a country where a new existence, happy and fruitful, was as complete as ever. As has been stated by one writer dealing with this subject, "the opening of the doors a little wider has but disclosed the dammed-up state of the stream, which, given free release, is pouring in fuller force over the Dominion."

As to the moral effect of the legislation that enabled these restrictions to be carried out, it showed that while Canada was seeking settlers, its lands and its homes were not intended as a shelter for those unable to meet the standard set as Canada's laws of civilization. The concessions which have removed these restrictions still have in view the maintenance of this standard, and those who are still allowed in are subject to the same requirements that have prevailed for years. As pointed out by the writer previously quoted, "Canada has successfully impressed on those countries from which she draws her people that her prime and avowed purpose for those who will come here is to build a new country which is a contribution to Canada's population. It has revealed its mission to its shores."

The removal of the barriers has had a further-reaching effect than the entry into the country of many, formerly barred by reasons of financial stringency. It has had a moral effect. The restriction was rightly regarded as an indication of Canada's latent economic condition, and many persons and families of comfortable means contemplating Canadian settlement were discouraged from doing so. In the removal is seen the first blurb of the dawn of better days, and consequently many of those arriving are in a condition to establish rapidly and securely.

Though Canadian immigration falls broadly into the two classes, British and American, many European peoples have contributed in a large measure to the agricultural development of the Western provinces, and it is gratifying to note the same healthy interest in Canada evinced by the most desirable of these.

"Amongst those from the European countries are Serbians, Poles, Swiss, Roumanians, Dutch, Jugoslavs, French, Danish, Norwegians, Swedes, Finns and Lithuanians. All have constituted fine, desirable citizen-building material, as the few detentions and lesser deportations bear testimony. Furthermore, the disturbed industrial conditions of the New England states have resulted in the commencement of an exodus of French-Canadian families back to their old homes, which may reach an appreciable size."

"On all sides this awakening of interest is evident. It is a new faith borne on the crest of the wave of brighter prospects, the dawn of a fuller realization in the continued inability of many other countries to emerge from the economic slough into which the war plunged them, of the desirability of Canada as a country more rapidly throwing off its post-bellum depression, and its great place in the world's immediate future."

"British migration is of a healthy and desirable order, of sturdy composition, and frequently heavily capitalized. Many Scottish farmers have already arrived this year."

Every state in the Union is contributing its quota, and joining with those who have been in Canada for a number of years in the work of reclaiming the virgin prairie of the great plains of the West and converting them into immense fields of golden grain, or its grasses into fodder for the dairy cow or the fattening steer. HARDING O. K.'S CITIZEN TROOPS

Tells Soldiers He Wishes 100,000 Instead of 28,000 Were Training

FOR PEACE, NOT FOR WAR

Reminds Students That No Armed Campaign Is Planned in Any Direction, in Addressing Citizens

Soldiers From Camp Meade

Washington, Aug. 23.—President Harding, in an address to citizen-soldiers from Camp Meade, Md., declared he favored military training for more than 100,000 civilians annually, not for any prospective aggressive warfare, but to preserve peace.

After reviewing the civilian troops on the ellipse adjacent to the White House grounds, the President called attention to the fact that 28,000 civilians were given training this summer, compared with 11,000 last year.

In the Camp Meade contingent were 1,000 young men from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania, who have been in training for three weeks.

Declaring the boys had been benefited by learning discipline, the President asserted "all America might well benefit by learning a little more impressively the obligations of the citizen to his country." His address followed:

"I could not allow the opportunity to pass without a word of felicitation and congratulation to you have afforded us, those who were in review and those who carried on the review, a most impressive and reassuring spectacle. You are citizens of a republic wholly devoted to peace. There is not a thought in America of armed warfare. There is not a design on the part of your country to carry on an armed campaign in any direction."

"We are concerned only with peace and the security of peace, and I like to think that this great republic, reducing its regular army in accordance with its ideals, can have the assurance that comes to it with such a spectacle as you have given us. I congratulate you on this achievement."

"It is a fine thing for the young manhood of America to turn from the ordinary engagements of the vacation season to a study of military service and training for service. I am not sure, however, but you have profited quite as well as your country. If my eyes testify correctly, you are benefited from the physical training, which always means a higher state of American manhood. You have benefited by learning discipline. You have benefited, by learning a little more impressively the obligations of the citizen to his country."

"It is a rather interesting thing modern science has learned that the ills of the nervous and mental being may largely be cured by the development of the physical being, and I take it that you have not only had a wholesome time, but that you are all returning to your normal pursuits better equipped for the tasks of life."

"You will be interested to know that the volunteer citizens' training movement last year enlisted about 11,000 recruits. This year there were 28,000 of you in the various camps. If I could have my wish this number would increase until more than 100,000 were annually studying and preparing for armed service, not that we ever expect to be called upon for such service, but solely for national defense and the preservation of the government under which we all live."

"You know, modern soldiery is very different from that of nearly all the history of the world. Our soldiering of today is solely for national defense and the preservation of that government under which we live."

"There is new assurance, there is new confidence, there is new belief in the perpetuity of this American republic when one can stand, as I have stood, and note such a company of ready volunteer defenders as you have shown us in this review. Again my congratulations and my gratitude for your country."

HARDING PAT ON SALES TAX

Serves Notice He Will Veto Bonus Bill Not Providing Specific Finance Plan

Washington, Aug. 23.—The President has again served notice that he will veto any bonus bill that does not provide specifically for the raising of revenue to finance the ex-service men's "adjusted compensation."

He reiterated that he would prefer to have a sales tax written into the bill if one must be enacted.

The teacher was not one to keep her thoughts from her face, and Mrs. Claver looked at her first with distress and then with growing wrath as she felt the need of coming to her man's defense.

Finally she leaned across the table toward her guest, and pounded heavily with the handle of a fork.

Frenchman Predicts That In Near Future the Trip Can Be Made in Forty-Nine Hours

The first 31 minutes, it seems, will be very agreeable, but during the 48 hours and 20 minutes of the second part of the course one will have the sensation of a terrible fall in the void."

GOOD TOWNS AND TOWNS NOT SO GOOD

Observations of a Traveling Man

Were you ever in Goodtown, that busy little place, where you saw the neat looking railroad station with the beautiful flower beds, and the name of the town spelled out with white-washed rocks? Do you remember, when you walked down Main street, how your spirits soared as your subconscious sense absorbed the atmosphere of the community? Do you remember the clean, well-kept streets, the bright store fronts with modern, up-to-date windows, and everyone walking with a sprightly, springy, contagious step that infused you with "oodles of pep"? Remember? Yes. That was Goodtown.

During my twenty years' experience as a traveling salesman, covering nearly every state in the United States, I have visited many different cities and towns. I have seen good towns and towns not so good. I have seen small hamlets become large cities within a few years; and I have seen the passing of many a small town within the same length of time—towns that were well on their way to become large and great; but on going back a few years later, I found the place almost deserted, the factories closed, the majority of the houses and the stores vacant, dilapidated and going to decay. The few people remaining there, and those living in the neighboring farms bought nearly all of their merchandise, including groceries, soaps, etc., from the large mail order houses in the cities. This was the very thing that killed local pride in the beginning, undermined the civic foundation of the town, and started it on the road to ruin.

Occasionally, during my travels, some brother traveling man would say to me: "Don't fail to make that town of So-and-So, for you'll find it a good, live place, where standard advertised goods are always in big demand." And, invariably, when I arrived at the town mentioned, and met some of the merchants there, I found that the man was right. The town was a good one—busy and prosperous and every person in it alive and progressive.

In talking to the business men, I learned that they were proud of their home town; that they were "All for One and One for All"; that they worked together for the betterment of the community. The people of the town and the surrounding vicinity spent their money with the merchants whose money and energy had helped to build up the town; whose money and cooperation had helped to establish the local banks, and had assisted in the building of good roads, good stores, good schools, good churches, etc. The local papers were filled with local advertising. The publishers were not forced to carry mail order advertising in order to get out their papers regularly. They were patronized liberally by all of their business men. This made it possible to publish a big, interesting, newsy newspaper that reflected the spirit of the community, and demanded a wide circulation among the town and country folk. I found that the town had a commercial club which had made wonderful progress during the past few years in securing several new factories for the place, that local stock companies owned and operated the town's largest industries; and that many of the men working in them owned stock, that every man in the place who wanted work could get it, and at wages above those being paid in the cities.

The home banks willingly helped the farmers, the home banks helped the merchants, and they likewise extended credit to those of the town and country needing. I learned, too, that nearly everybody in town paid cash for everything he bought, and that there was hardly a man, woman or child in the place who did not have a home savings account at one of the local banks. This good town had a well-organized relief society, too, but nothing for them to do.

The business men provided funds for a pure food show, a stock show, and a home-coming week, each year. In all, the town seemed like one big family—everything running smoothly and everybody happy and contented.

I was told there was not one mail order buyer in the town or vicinity. The people were too broad-minded and intelligent to refuse to do their bit toward the upbuilding of their community. And so I found the majority of those "good towns" to be just such places—"All for One and One for All."

So let us all be loyal to the town that we live in or near, the town that has helped you and me, and is ready and willing to help us again. You may be rolling in prosperity at the present time and may cherish the belief that you have a perfect right to buy what you please, when you please, and where you please. However, the day may be very near at hand when you will need the friendship and cooperation of one or more of your home business men, men whom you can bank on, and men who will bank on you.

A good, live, prosperous city or town is an impossibility without the support and cooperation of every person living within its allotted territory. A town with modern improvements of all kinds—such as good roads and streets, a sewerage system, good water, good schools, good churches, gas for cooking, electric lights, etc., is not possible without a good, live, progressive lot of home business men. Stop and think for a moment. Do you remember of one single improvement, municipal or otherwise, made in your town that was not wholly or partially promoted and engineered by one or more of your progressive business men?

Every reputable citizen desires to live in as clean and wholesome a town as possible, a town where law and order is respected, a town where manhood, womanhood and purity abound, a town with modern improvements of all kinds. The people want good, pure drinking water, good roads, good streets, good walks, and a good sewerage and disposal plant as a necessary safeguard to health. They want every man, woman and child in their town to enjoy all the benefits of a modern, up-to-date town, a town everybody can be proud of; but only with proper cooperation on the part of its citizens can these modern improvements be realized.

If you send your money away, if you refuse to cooperate with your home people, you cease to follow the principle, "live and let live."

If your town is dirty, unsanitary, unprogressive, with real estate values depreciating, with idle factories and empty store buildings, don't blame the town or the business men in it, but blame yourself. It is your fault, and the fault of the other fellow who does not boost home business.

The big city mail order houses care nothing about your town or community. They do not care whether the roads and streets where you live are improved or whether they have a foot of mud or muck on them ten months in the year; they do not care whether your schools are warm and comfortable for your little boys and girls; they do not care whether you have good, pure drinking water to give them; they do not care how or where you make your money, just so long as you send them all or the greater part of what you make—in advance—for goods that are nearly always inferior to what you can buy for the same amount of money right at home.

Think this over, seriously; make a resolution today that you will patronize your home business men, that you will spread the good doctrine of buying-at-home among your friends and neighbors; so that they, too, will help make the home town a bigger and better town—A Good Town.

There's a lot of truth in the following verses which I picked up at a hotel in Iowa several years ago:

IT ISN'T YOUR TOWN—IT'S YOU

If you want to live in the kind of a town

Like the kind of a town you like,

You needn't slip your clothes in a grip

And start on a long, long hike.

You'll only find what you left behind.

For there's nothing that's really new.

It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town.

It isn't the town—it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid

Lest somebody else gets ahead.

When everyone works and nobody shirks,

You can raise a town from the dead.

And if while you make your personal stake

Your neighbors can make one, too;

Your town will be what you want to see.

It isn't the town—it's you.

"LYING LIPS" AT CRYSTAL TOMORROW AND SATURDAY

Nance Abbott, an English aristocrat, is engaged to a man of her own set, but twice her age. She visits Canada and there meets Blair Cornwall, a young ranchman. She falls in love with him, but cannot reconcile herself to living a life of hardship as his wife. Nance returns to England and Blair sails on the same boat, determined to win her in spite of her devotion to luxury and wealth. The ship is wrecked and the two left together on the floating hulk. Nance swears her love for him but retracts when a rescue ship is sighted, and asks him to hide so that she may be found alone. The wreckage is destroyed and Cornwall, so Nance believes, with it.

Conscience stricken, she returns to London and prepares to marry the man to whom she is engaged. Cornwall, who has survived the wreck, appears under an assumed name, determined to make her repent her act of condemning him to death.

The concluding scenes of the story embrace a climax so unexpected and powerful as to place "Lying Lips" among the monumental screen dramas of the year.

Why bother about repairing your old shoes when you can buy a new pair at such low prices at the Chicago Footwear Company

As a result of 12,000 demonstrations in improved methods of dairying given by extension agents, farm women are reported to the United States Department of Agriculture as having made according to demonstrated methods 3,300,000 pounds of butter during the year. 550,000 of which were sold, and in addition they sold 750,000 gallons of cream.

Admitted.
A magazine with the uplift reveals asks: "Is any man perfect?" We blush. We hesitate. But vastly more important than our spiritual comfort is the duty we owe the public. Therefore, fighting back the inclination to keep silent, we bow to the demand of humanity, and admit it. We are.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

If you are thinking of building

you ought to have a copy of this new book—"CONCRETE for TOWN and COUNTRY." It has just been published by the Lehigh Portland Cement Company, and it will help you to get the best results. This valuable book has one hundred and ninety-two pages packed full of information, photographs, and drawings.

Whether you want to put down concrete walks about your place or to build a barn or a silo—or to make any other permanent improvements—you will find between the covers of this book practical, workable advice and suggestions.

We'll gladly arrange to get you a copy. That's just a part of our service to building material users. Tell us what work you are planning and let us tell you how we can help you.

THREE REASONS FOR

A FARM BUREAU

This question was answered from many different angles by those who entered the contest at the Farmers' picnic held at Diamond Lake, Aug. 15. According to the decision of the judges when are more familiar with the real purpose of the Farm Bureau than me.

By a process of elimination two sets of reasons were left as the best in the lot.

The first prize goes to Mrs. Joe Finckle for offering the following reasons:

1. For more intelligent farming.
2. For cooperation.
3. For social and community welfare.

Ellen F. Traut won second prize for the reasons that follow:

1. Organization.
2. To boost farming.
3. Social purposes.

Other good reasons given referred to legislation, cooperative marketing and service.

90,000 POUNDS OF

1922 WOOL GRADED

The wool pool department of the I. A. A. has now received somewhat over 90,000 pounds of 1922 Illinois wool, practically all of which is graded and ready for sale. Several of the graded lots are of very good quality, but due to the small amount in some of these grades, the wool may have to be sold with the wool of other states. By combining with other states to offer larger lots for sale, a much better showing can be made to buyers.

The wool department is urging growers to ship their wool immediately, so as to be included in the first grading. At present the wool market seems quite encouraging and there seems to be very little surplus wool available in any of the producing countries.

THRESHING SOY BEANS

"How to thresh soy beans" is a question being asked by many who are attempting to grow soy beans for seed. I believe that almost any standard separator used to thresh wheat and oats can be equipped at a very nominal expense so that it will thresh soy very satisfactorily.

The trouble most people have is not being able to adjust the machine so it will thresh without splitting the beans and will at the same time get the heavy straw through the blower. First, remember that it is speed and not teeth that split soy beans. Buy using a large pulley on the cylinder shaft of the separator, reducing the speed of the cylinder to 320-380 revolutions per minute, and using other large pulleys to keep the feeder, shakers, blower and fan running at normal speed, the possibility of splitting the soy is reduced to a minimum. When the cylinders run slow it is advisable to put in three or four rows of concave teeth so that all the beans will be threshed out of the pods and the straw shredded fine enough to go through the machine easily. Also this finer straw makes better feed for horses and cattle. These adjustments make a very satisfactory bean huller out of an ordinary wheat separator—W. E. Reigel, Tolono, Ill.

Horseshoe Team Goes to Olney

Leo Fenlon and Charles Bradiske, winners of the tournament at the Farmers' picnic, will represent Lake County Farm Bureau at the state tournament held at Olney August 23. The horseshoe contest is one of the big features of the state picnic, and those who attend will see some real artists at hurling the shoes.

Joe Hesket and E. A. Torbett have won for the past two years and recently won the championship from Missouri. One more winning game and the cup is theirs to keep.

The same team represented Lake county last year and with the practice since the tournament a year ago will score well up towards the front and may give the champions a run for the cup.

Mineral Mixture for Hogs

There are a number of mineral mixtures on the market that are no doubt valuable as a supplement to the grain and forage in the hogs ration. The following mixture is recommended by the University of Illinois: Charcoal, wood ashes or slack coal, five parts; ground limestone or air slacked lime, one part; ground rock phosphate, one part; salt, one part.

Compare the price of prepared mixtures with this home made formula and the advantage of making your own mineral ration is evident.

This mixture contains all the hog needs unless there is some disease in the herd.

THE HAGUE IN HISTORY

The Hague has a population of 360,000. It is located in southern Holland, and is the seat of the Dutch government. It is a fashionable and handsome city with fine streets and avenues and attractive squares. A seaside resort is located only a short distance from the capital.

Many treaties have been signed at The Hague. Among these were the treaty of the triple alliance signed in 1688 by England, Sweden and the Netherlands; of the triple alliance in 1717 by France, England and Holland; the treaty of peace between Holland and France in 1795.

The Hague tribunal was established in 1899; signed by 24 powers; purpose to facilitate international arbitration.

Less than 10 years ago, says the United States Department of Agriculture, the eradication of bovine tuberculosis seemed a staggering undertaking. One reason that rapid progress seemed impossible was that the subcutaneous-test method ordinarily used was slow. But since that time the use of other methods that are much more rapid, the ophthalmic and the intradermic, has made it possible to clean up areas as large as counties in a few weeks with relatively small force. The only possible way to eradicate tuberculosis in the light of our present knowledge is to find the diseased animals and properly dispose of them more rapidly than the disease can be spread; that is the big problem, and it means testing great numbers of animals.

Mrs. Enfield's Man

By CLARA DELAFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"Free?" asked Mrs. Enfield tartly. "Believe me, Mrs. Reames, I never knew what freedom meant before. All my life I've worked for men—first for my old father, who was a regular tyrant, and then for Jim Enfield."

"Why, I couldn't call my soul my own so long as that man was in the house. It was cooking and cleaning, and darning his socks—he was as helpless as a baby, for all his viciousness—and cross words all the time. And then he went and left me."

"You poor thing," said her visitor. "But that's what we women have to put up with."

"He left me," sobbed Mrs. Enfield, "and that poor child there"—she pointed to her daughter Gladys, aged fifteen—"and wrote a letter saying he was tired of my tongue-lashing, and was never coming back. Me that had slaved for him! Me that couldn't call my soul my own while he was in the house!"

"I suppose there's no danger of his ever coming back after all these months, is there?" asked the visitor.

Mrs. Enfield's voice rose into a shrill scream. "Come back? Well, I'd just like to see him try it!" she answered. "I'd give him a tongue-lashing, as he had the impudence to call it. I'd let him know whether he could treat us that way or not, going off and abandoning us, and leaving me to work for our living."

"Suppose he came back rich?" suggested the other.

"Rich? Jim Enfield rich? That man couldn't save a penny even if he was man enough to get a job! But if it was to happen, I'd throw his money in his face. Never shall Jim Enfield set foot inside my doors again, rich or poor!"

"That's the way to talk, ma," said Gladys. "We're better off without a great hulking man to support."

"You hold your tongue, Glad," answered her mother sharply. "It's quite true what you say, but it ain't for you to abuse your father."

Gladys tossed her head. "Anyway, when I see what he's done to you, ma, capturing your young love and then wrecking it, it makes me feel sore," she answered.

In spite of her attitude, Jane Enfield knew that there were times when she missed the presence of a man in the house. As a husband, Jim Enfield had been beneath contempt, but as a man he had his virtues. He could drive in nails and hammer things; he could fix taps and do odd jobs.

But Jim Enfield should never enter her home again. "Not if he crawled in dying on his bended knees, Gladys," she said. "I'm just living for the day when he comes back. Tongue-lashing? Huh!"

A few days later, when Mrs. Enfield was preparing supper, Gladys rushed in, wild with excitement. "What do you think, ma?" she asked. "Father's been seen in town!"

"Huh?" said Jane Enfield. "Let him try to come here, that's all! Glad, if he tries to force his way in, you run for the policeman. And I'll—" she looked about her and snatched up a rolling-pin. "I guess I'm woman enough to hand him what he deserves," she said.

Suddenly rather uncertain footsteps were heard outside. They looked at one another and shivered. And then there came a tapping at the kitchen door. After a few moments of hesitation Gladys went and opened it.

Jim Enfield came in. He wore a very shabby suit of clothes, a battered hat was on the back of his head, and he glanced rather sheepishly from his wife to his daughter.

Then he advanced slowly and uncertainly, glancing askance at the rolling-pin in Jane Enfield's hand, and threw himself into a chair.

"Well, here we are again!" he said. "Had a mighty rough time, Jane, old girl! Been on the tramp six weeks since I lost my last job, and nearly dead. Guess I'll have to lay up for a spell before starting out to look for a job again."

"Hello, Glad! How's the school coming along? My, you're growing quite a big girl now, ain't you? Come and give your daddy a kiss!"

Gladys, advancing as if hypnotized, suddenly flung her arms around her father's neck and imprinted a succession of fervid kisses on his cheeks. Then she drew back and looked at her mother.

"Well? What are you staring at me like that for?" demanded Jane Enfield. "Hurry out to the corner store and get some ham for your father. And get a lettuce and a bottle of pickles—the kind he likes. You ought to know if any one does. Jim, I'll run upstairs and fix things up a bit. Watch the kettle and see it doesn't boil over."

She ran to him and put her head down on his shoulder. "You must rest up a while before looking for work, Jim," she said. "Poor boy, you must have had a rough time. Gladys! She stopped the girl as she was going out of the door. "Go and get your father's slippers first, and then hurry to the store. My, Jim!" she continued, "it feels good to have a man in the house again!"

Diplomacy.

"When Mrs. Peckton lays down the law, do you acquiesce?"

"Yes," said Mr. Peckton, slyly, "as the diplomats do."

"Eh?"

"In principle,"

MADE FROM ABALONE SHELL

Most of the So-Called Pearl Buttons Used in This Country Are of That Material.

Millions of dollars' worth of buttons are used in this country every year. Of these a large percentage are made from some form of salt or fresh water shell. The real pearl shell from which the pearl button was once made is a product of the tropics and has become so scarce and difficult to obtain that nearly all so-called pearl buttons are made from the shell of the abalone, a strange and but little known shell fish of the Pacific coast.

These are a form of the limpet and grow singly on the rocks, to which they attach themselves so strongly that an iron bar is required to pry them off. They are found mostly in the rocky ledges of the central and southern California coast, and whole schooner cargoes are found about the Gulf of California. These are brought to San Francisco, whence they are distributed to the various markets.

A full-grown shell will measure from seven to ten inches in length; they are beautifully tinted inside, the brilliant hues of the center merging into a soft pearl tint round the border. The fish which inhabits these shells is a food product valued highly by dwellers along the coast where they are found.

NEW MAP SHOWS EXTENT OF CATTLE TUBERCULOSIS IN U. S.

Tests of thousands of herds throughout the country have enabled the United States Department of Agriculture to make a map showing the approximate percentage of cattle in various states and counties infected with tuberculosis.

In nearly half the country, largely in the south and southwest, it is shown that less than 1 percent of the cattle have the disease. In other parts of the country the infection runs from 1 to 15 percent, and in still other localities, aggregating more than 50,000 square miles, more than 25 percent are believed to be tuberculous.

The figures are based on five years of systematic testing, and should prove of value in directing eradication work.

Ideal Freedom.

The only freedom which deserves the name is that of pursuing our own good in our own way, so long as we do not attempt to deprive others of theirs, or impede their efforts to obtain it.—John Stuart Mill.

RAIN WARNINGS SAVE GROWERS OF RAISINS FROM BIG LOSSES

In the great raisin grape growing district of central California the drying is done in trays in the open air. Great loss would result if rain should fall on the partially dried fruit; hence when rain is expected the information is immediately spread throughout the valley by telephone and telegraph, and every available person is set to stacking the trays. Even the schools may be closed and the children pressed into service, and woe betide the unfortunate tramp caught in the district who has a disinclination to become acquainted with work. This is another instance indicative of the valuable service rendered by the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture in warning fruit growers against possible losses.

More effective methods of handling gumbo soils are being developed by some of the farmers on the Mississippi River reclamation project in Montana, says the United States Department of agriculture. One conclusion is that in irrigating this kind of soil the water should be applied frequently and in small quantities. Much trouble in getting crops started may be overcome by adopting a regular habit of fall plowing. The seeding of such soils to either yellow or white sweet clover in some cases is proving a means of supplying humus and for getting grain or alfalfa started later.

Farm housewives last year either sold or put on their pantry shelves 1,335,000 containers of jelly, 9,500,000 cans of fruit and vegetables, and 715,000 pounds of poultry and meat, canned according to methods demonstrated to them by extension agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges.
